Why does our menu not contain sea fish? Ghana's sea fishery is of particular concern to us, where foreign trawlers over exploit the resource and are driving it close to collapse. Check out the Environmental Justice Foundation (EJF) for more info! Farmed fish is not a perfect solution to the issue of Ghana's fishery, but when purchasing from Flossel Tilapia Fish Farm, Sogakope, we know that we are not depriving local communities of food, not purchasing from environmentally damaging sea trawlers, and have more transparency about the treatment of the fish and the people who farm it.

We are almost 0% import free! – Why buy imported when you could buy Ghanaian?! The money stays in Ghana, we support local Ghanaian-owned businesses and the carbon emissions of transportation are heavily reduced. Supporting local businesses and entrepreneurs means we are investing in our communities.

Have you seen our reusable straws, napkins and cardboard packaging? All included in our attempt to be single-use plastic free!

Importing UTC milk doesn't make sense to us anymore, especially when we have so many coconut trees around. That's why we make our own home-made, cold-pressed milk from these coconuts and utilise throughout our menu. Reducing imports and keeping money within our community!

All our food is served on the gorgeous and rustic made-in-Ghana earthenware – supporting Ghana-based businesses and reducing consumption of imported goods.
